

PATIENTS AMONG US

Meet Jacob. At the age of two, his parents received the news that no parents should have to hear – young Jacob was diagnosed with leukemia.

After extensive chemotherapy treatment and several blood transfusions, Jacob is now in remission, is attending school regularly and will be celebrating his 7th birthday as an active and healthy child.

Jacob's parents are grateful that donated blood was available when they needed it. As a way to give back to those who now need blood, the family has sponsored a blood drive in his honor.

Many people say they have never donated blood simply because they have never been asked.

Please, Consider Yourself Asked.

The difference you'll make in the life of a patient simply cannot be overstated.
